THE REQUIREMENT

Portsmouth Business School were looking for a solution which would enable students to work on individual or group based tasks with the ability to display their work from a PC or laptop seamlessly. They have a strategy in investing in first class facilities for learning

THE SOLUTION

The Business School invested in a new type of classroom, called the 'TEAL' Studio (technology enhanced active learning) this merges lectures, simulations and hands-on desktop experiments to create a rich collaborative learning experience and teaching format.

Students sit at tables each seating groups of nine students, organised into three teams of 3. Each table has an IBT interactive display with integrated Windows PC and three laptops.

65" and 84" interactive displays with integrated PC's were supplied. The anti-glare vivid display meant content was visible without having to darken the room giving students a comfortable user experience. With multi-touch, Mohs7 scratch resistance, extensive connection ports, integrated sound and Wi-Fi, the IBT solution offered Portsmouth University a low power consuming, state-of-the art feature rich solution.
